About the Summer Meeting

ANZCOP is the annual conference of the Australian and New Zealand Optical Society (ANZOS), a non-profit organisation for the advancement of optics in Australia and New Zealand. The society was formed in 1983 for this purpose. The Society embraces anyone contributing to or interested in optics in the widest sense.

The AIP Summer Meeting is the bi-annual meeting of the Australian Institute of Physics (AIP). The AIP is an organisation dedicated to promoting the role of Physics in research, education, industry and the community. Since it was formed in 1963, evolving from the Australian Branch of the IOP, the AIP has served the needs and interests of professional physicists and those with an interest in physics.

About our venue

The Conference is being held at a newly built state-of-the-art (A$200 million) Research School of Physics (RSPHys) building, ANU, Canberra, Australia. The facility overlooks the Australian Parliament and includes a state-of-the-art lecture theatre with quantum-random-generated seats and several conference rooms. RSPHys is the largest Physics School in Australia, with research excellence in all areas of Physics and Optics with close connections to the Research School of Astronomy and Astrophysics. Speakers will present live from the spacious auditorium, with advanced acoustic and display systems. The open-space architecture will enable great networking discussions and collaborations. The exhibitors will enjoy the open area within the food and beverage area.
